

High Pressure Seal

An high pressure seal comprises a tube with a first end adapted to fit into a first bore of a first mating part and a second end adapted to fit into second bore of a second bore of a second mating part and allow fluid communication between the first bore and the second bore. The seal is expandable radially about an axis to form a seal between the first and second mating parts.